Louis Fischer, Lecturer, Correspondent, to Speak

Known as Author Of Famous Books

Middlebury students of world affairs and every person interested in international problems will be offered the opportunity of hearing Louis Fischer, well-known author, lecturer and war correspondent, on Monday, March 4, at 8:15 p.m. in Mead Chapel.

LOUIS FISCHER

International Figure

Mr. Fischer graduated from the Philadelphia School of Pedagogy in 1916. For the next two years he taught in public schools of that city. In 1922 he made his first trip to Russia. He is now a specialist on the study of the Soviet Republic and European problems. In 1936 Mr. Fischer made extensive travels in Spain where he did further studying. He has also spent much time traveling in England, France, Germany, and the Balkans. He knows Stalin, Gandhi, Churchill and many of our own statesmen.

Noted Journalist

Louis Fischer began to write newspaper and magazine articles in 1921 when in Berlin. His first contribution was to the New York Evening Post. Since then his articles have appeared in such publications as the New York Nation, the Baltimore Sun, the Paris L'Europe Nouvelle, the New Statesman, and the Nation.

Among his books are: Oil Imperialism, The Soviets in World Affairs, Why Recognize Russia, Machines and Men in Russia, Soviet Journey, The War in Spain, Why Spain Fights On, La Guerre en Espagne, A Week with Gandhi, and Dawn of Victory.

This lecture is one of a series presented by the college, and is free to all students.

Two New Members Join Midd Faculty

John Chalmers, Middlebury '38, and a Rhodes Scholar, has been appointed to the college faculty as an Assistant Professor of Economics.

While in college Mr. Chalmers twice received the Hazeltine-Klevenow Cup which is awarded for outstanding ability in athletics and scholarship. Playing quarterback on the football team and elected captain of the basketball team, he was made a member of Blue Key. He also served as class treasurer.

Mr. Chalmers went to England as a Rhodes Scholar in 1938, returning in 1939

Panthers Working to Revive Middlebury's Musical Spirit

Foo Matthews

Those of you who entered Midd during the war years remember the Navy Blue Panthers as the unit which put real life into Saturday night affairs down at McCullough Gym. You returnees will join with me in remembering the Black Panthers with such talented personnel as Don Roberts on Trumpet, "George" Youngs on drums, Howi Quirk on piano, Dick Fales on trombone, and Pete Harris on tenor sax. All of those were wonderful musicians, and they worked hard to make the kind of music that Midd undergrads liked for dancing. The Panthers were reputed to be the best college band in New England back in '40 and '41. The band worked at dances from Burlington to Westchester County, and from Poughkeepsie to Worcester, and was constantly in demand.

Former Leader

Bud Moore should really be writing this article because he was leader of the Panthers back in 1941. That was the band that played wonderfully inspired jazz concerts on the steps of chapel with the whole college rocking around the lawns. The men worked hard in those days and the whole college was proud of the results. It is good to have Bud "Daddy" Moore back with us to lead the trumpet section.

There are several other men returned who have been associated with the Panthers and many new musicians to relieve the manpower shortage which held up any musical activity last fall. Ray Walsh is here to play with Bud in the trumpet section. Bob Seixas has returned to his position at the piano, and he might sing as a funny song once in a while. Bob is quite an entertainer. Among the other men who may work with the outfit are John Gale, Larry Willard, and Dave Rowell, trombones; George Sholes, bass; Frank Gubitz or Doc Welles, drums; Charley Meilleur, Jean Hebert, Cecil Steen, or Don Campbell on saxophones. There are others whom I may not have mentioned, but there has been no definite line-up as yet. In fact, the men have not been called together yet; but it is expected that it will get noisy around these parts very soon.

New Arrangements

Cecil Steen, of navy fame at Midd, is taking charge of getting the candidates together. He has also consented to let the band use his personal library of tunes because all of the music belonging to the Panthers went up in smoke along with everything else in poor old Hamlin Hall. It was a sorry day for Middlebury when Hamlin Hall burned down. The old Panther library contained some very excellent special arrangements by Charley Shirely, who has done arrangements for Charlie Spivak, Les Brown, and Sam Donahue. We still have the arrangement of "I Surrender, Dear" which served as our theme for a few years. There is a possibility that the band can get an arrangement of "High, High on the Hill" which would make a beautiful theme song for a Middlebury dance orchestra. Let's hope that this plan works out.

Band Dances

Midd is fast returning to its pre-war status along with the rest of the world. One of the things which I hope to see revived very soon is the dance band, and I am sure all of you agree with me. I

Faculty Consider Comprehensives

Exams in Majors Would Be Taken In Last Semester

A faculty committee composed of Professors Raymond H. White, chairman, Donald H. Ballou, Robert W. Rafuse and Mr. Jordan R. Scobie, an ex-officio member, has recently submitted a report to the college faculty for their study in expectation of a faculty vote on resuming comprehensive examinations next year.

Discussions and Voting

The committee has for the past several months been studying the pre-war methods involved in such general examinations for BA candidates and has made several recommendations as to future procedure in the mimeographed report it has submitted to every member of the college faculty. Before the final vote, which will be held at President Samuel S. Stratton's next meeting with the faculty, each of the three faculty divisions of social sciences, humanities and sciences will study the committee report separately and be prepared for discussion and voting.

Before and During War

General examinations were omitted during the war years, including the class of 1946. The examinations, both oral and written, are given in the student's major field and are meant to place emphasis on the assimilation of knowledge and on the acquisition of a broad and deep

PLAYERS TO GIVE EVERYMAN AGAIN

Three one-act plays and a revival of last year's production of "Everyman" have been announced for March 21 and 22 and April 4 and 5 respectively by Professor Erie T. Volkert of the college Playhouse.

Student Directors

Student directors will be in charge of the three plays, the first of which, "Poison, Passion and Petrifaction" will be both a reunion and a revival of the 1943 production with lead roles returned to Donald Y. Gilmore '47, Edward M. Flaherty '48 and John D. Hunt '48, if they show interest in repeating their pre-war performance. This George B. Shaw play will be under the direction of Helen J. Kasper '46.

"St. Michael Comes to Shepherd's Bush" by James Parish, under the direction of Patricia P. Dow '48, and "Day's

Days Publish Paper, Addison Independent

Mr. and Mrs. Burchard M. Day are to publish a weekly paper, the Addison Independent, the first issue being Friday, March 8. News content will be local in scope, gradually extending to county-wide coverage.

A trial circulation of 1,000 copies is planned for a period of two to four weeks; the paper will be delivered with the Burlington Daily News which offers national coverage. All work of writing and editing is to be done by Mr. and Mrs. Day, and printing by the Burlington paper. Being entirely independent in policy, the new weekly will contain four pages in its first issue, expanding to six and then eight pages in the future.

Mr. Day attended Middlebury College from '40 to '42, returning to the campus in the fall of '45 after serving in the Army. He is now working on the Burlington Daily News to obtain practical information for his journalistic venture. Mrs. Day graduated from Middlebury in '42.

FRATERNITY HOUSES, BUILDINGS IN TOWN, USED FOR MEN'S DORMS

Prof. Guarnaccia Returns to Midd From Navy Duty

Middlebury welcomes back this semester, Samual Guarnaccia, former varsity football coach and instructor in Spanish and Italian. Leaving in March, 1944, for the navy, Mr. Guarnaccia went to the Princeton Indoctrination School, where he received a commission for a lieutenancy, junior grade. He was discharged with the rank of full lieutenant on January 4, 1946.

Education Service Officer

After several false starts, including temporary duty in Washington, D. C., and a course at Harvard to enable him to teach basic English to natives in the Pacific, he was sent with a detachment to Naples as Educational Service Officer. Until the end of the war, nine months later, he was part of a unit which had complete charge of scholastic education.

It was Mr. Guarnaccia's work to organize classes in any subjects which the enlisted men requested. These included courses in radio, short-hand, typing and English, to help them in their navy communication work, in Italian and French, and in other lines. As Education Service Officer, he also urged the men to complete their high school educations in order to be able to take greater advantage of the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Italian Christmas

One of the most outstanding things Mr. Guarnaccia did while in Italy was to help establish a dozen soup kitchens to feed the orphaned children of Naples. Every day these groups fed over 1000 children, housed mostly in church orphanages. Again the men of the detachment showed great generosity when they gave a tremen-

A total of 810 students, 285 in the Men's College and 525 in the Women's College are enrolled for the current semester at Middlebury.

In light of the overcrowded living conditions currently encountered at Middlebury, quarters for these men, and in many instances for their families, are being furnished by the college at the following off-campus dormitories: The Sig Ep house, Chi Psi Lodge, D. U. house, Theta Chi house, Federated building, Middlebury Inn, the Sargent House and The Gab[illegible].

February Seniors Leave to Midd Their Final Will and Testament

Class Prophecy

The aged Philosopher, when consulted about the future of beloved February 1946 class, gazed into his crystal ball, and taking us by the hand, said, "I will show you all—come with me." And so we went—

Airline Hop

Leaping into an airplane, at the last minute—as usual, we settled into our seats, and heaved a sigh of relief as the stewardess came forward to help us. Imagine our surprise to find it was Margie Harrison—we remembered last hearing of Marge as the winner of the "Bud Cohen Sexy Shoes Contest." We told her all about the big opening we had just come from of Janet Wilson's new dress shop, "Tord and Laylors." Willie is proprietor and buyer as well . . . Annie Curry was there as head model, her clothes all being named for famous American authors, the best looking was an ice blue negligee called the Frost special.

New Celebrities

As we pulled into the Boston airport, who should come aboard but that eminent politician, Fran Tenney, armed with skis and equipment. She was heading north to join Bette Hertschinger, noted author of "Reginald Cook, Professor and Man." They planned at the next stop to pick up Eileen Luz who is now running a special broadcast, "Birthdays and How

Class Will

The senior class of February, 1946, in its last death throes, tired of the load and the weary road, more diseased than deceased, but clinging desperately to the last few hours of college life does hereby, in anticipation of the inevitable end, will and bequeath its cherished possessions as follows:

Becky Fraser, alias "Shushen down the Shurban" leaves her outstanding record and ability in polo playing to Barbara Rupp Lister.

Allie Lou throws the Bull to Jan Shaw for dissection in the bug lab.

Sell leaves her smooth and mellifluous monotone to Ros Rittenhouse—she figures Mr. Bedford can do things with it.

Helen Riggs bequeathes her affinity to flat tires and consequent lateness to anyone who is desirous of same.

Luz, composer of the latest song-hit "the Bromibe Blues," reluctantly offers the copyrights to Professor Reid or—in more intimate circles—to Evans.

Faith Weber parts with her excitable and ruthless temper to bestow it upon Marion Fisher.

Mary Nasmith wills to Esther Walsh her sparkling Ipana smile.

Cindy willingly abandons all rights and interests in the Chem Lab, in all the unknowns and knowns, to the avid Chemist Argyle.

Birch and Curry forsake reluctantly,

Quiz Kids Or Students?

A two-year-old child may be taught to recite involved mathematical equations—but does such a child know much about mathematics? We rather doubt it.

A college student may be taught how to get high marks, but does that student really learn something from the course? We are beginning to doubt that too.

Rote memory, applauded so enthusiastically when observed in a small child of even only average intelligence, is quite a convenient trick to have at our disposal when we have a pre-a facing us and too little time left to use those processes, thinking and learning, which should replace rote memory somewhere mid-way through grammar school, or by high school at the very latest. For some strange reason we don't seem to be ashamed of this self-imposed insult to our intelligence, but we are so inordinately proud of our accomplishment that we spare no opportunity to pass the technique on to those misguided souls whom we see trying to learn something the hard way.

Whether we like it or not, some day we're all going to be held responsible for some small bit of knowledge that we were exposed to during the course of our college career. If all that has been expected of us in our courses is high marks so that our averages, and consequently the college average, are high, it is quite obvious that some day we will find that our crammed information, never really understood, has departed. After even only one term of college, we know which courses we really worked for and which ones really taught us something. More often than not, they are not our highest marks, for they cannot hope to compete with the "pipes" we try to take and pass by sheer cramming of itemized facts.

The fault of this method of getting a degree the easiest way possible, so evident to our professors, is largely with us—but it is also partly attributable to the attitude, source unknown, that we are under constant pressure to aim for high marks and that they are expected of us as Middlebury students. It seems to us that the students and the college, would be prouder of a little honest learning than of a list of high marks accredited to a group of lazy intellects.

Vandalism . . .

Last Friday night the men's college heard Prof. Frank Cady describe the battles and uproars of life in Starr Hall during his own college days. According to Professor Cady, the old dormitory took a great deal of punishment at the hands of its residents. But when compared with the uncontrolled vandalism that reigned in Gifford Hall last semester, the deeds of Professor Cady's fellow-students seem indeed trivial.

Statistics from the Business Manager's office show the great expense the college has incurred in repairing damage done to doors, fixtures, windows, light bulbs, furniture and tile during an epidemic of childish destruction that has been prevalent in the past four months. Replacement of doors that were burned beyond use has passed the $100 mark. Destruction of bulbs, smashed against walls and corridors averaged $1 per day or approximately $125 in the semester. One has only to walk into bathrooms on any floor in the building to see plumbing fixtures broken from the wall, with no thought of the fact that such materials are practically irreplaceable in these early post-war days. Furniture has also been one of the chief expenses, with repairs on chairs which have been broken by tipping or wrestling averaging $1 a piece. Breakage of windows has also increased over other years and large sections of asphalt tile has been burned from the corridor floors.

College students should have passed this stage of destructiveness. A dormitory is a communal residence and should be treated as any person treats his own home. There is no point or purpose in such actions. We are neither the first nor the last students who will occupy these dormitories. Those who have gone before have left us well-kept living quarters for our four years of college life. It is our obligation to preserve them and pass them on to those who will follow.

The college has done its utmost to provide us with the best furniture available. We sleep in comfortable spring beds, in private rooms, while other students all over the country are sleeping on cots in gymnasiums, in trailers, in fabricated huts, lacking even minimum conveniences. The administration has done a splendid job of providing janitors and dormitory maids at a time when labor is at a premium. These staffs, however, are small and already overburdened with work. It should be our policy to lighten rather than increase their chores. Last semester's almost daily tally of smashed bulbs, broken furniture and windows, ruined fixtures and burnt-out doors was vandalism of the worst sort. A new attitude is greatly in order for the spring term.

Free Speech

The editors are not responsible for opinions expressed in this column unless they are clearly prefaced by "Editors' Note."

To the Editors:

We realize that some faculty members are overburdened, but it is the responsibility of the college to provide an adequate number of instructors to correct examinations, particularly finals. We don't feel that our efforts can be properly evaluated when corrected by students who in some cases have had only one more course than that which they are correcting. In many instances, the exams are of the subjective type, and we think that the professors are the only ones qualified to judge the correctness of the answers.

(Signed) ANONYMOUS.

To whom it may concern:

I would like to make a few observations concerning the rule that states: Women of Middlebury College may not wear ski pants until the thermometer registers five degrees below zero, as announced in all dining rooms at breakfast.

It would be an understatement to say that this was an unfortunate decision of the administration. In regarding the fact that they are directly responsible for the health of 500 women, I would call it gross negligence. That anyone of mature intellect would put social decorum (wearing pants) ahead of sound health seems inconceivable.

Anyone who has stayed in Vermont for any length of time knows that the thermometer is no indication of the degree of coldness or the penetrating quality of the wind. Many days when the thermometer registers 15 degrees above zero, the winds and dampness necessitate protection against them. Another fact which those who considered the rule seemed to ignore, is that some people are more susceptible to colds than others, and therefore must take extra precautions.

The only sensible solution to this situation is that each college student be allowed to use her own judgment in deciding when and where she should wear ski pants. Must it always be necessary for some tragedy to occur before action is taken on such matters?

ALUMNI NOTE

Laurence Barrett, former teacher of English at Middlebury College 1940-41, is one of nine servicemen awarded a post-war Woodrow Wilson Fellowship at Princeton University. The recipients are college graduates of high scholastic standing whose scholastic careers were interrupted by the war. Mr. Barrett is the son of Robertson T. Barrett of Katonah, N. Y. He graduated from Amherst College in 1937 cum laude, spent one term at the Graduate School in Princeton during 1941-42; taught English at the Berkshire School in Massachusetts 1938-40. Mr. Barrett has spent two years overseas in the Navy in command of a submarine chaser.

Exam Week Finds Skirmish Between Practical and Ideal

Jo Buck

Once in a while you get thinking during exam week, and the paradoxical figures of the "Ideal" and "Practical" methods of studying stand on either side of your book and battle it out.

First Insult

The first insult was hurled by Ideal who said reproachingly to his opponent, "You've got some nerve waiting 'til the last minute to cram all this stuff into your head."

Practical, half-asleep, stumbled to his feet and returned, "Well, what are you supposed to do to cover four months work? Anyway, who says I don't know this stuff already? I'm just sort of reviewing. College isn't all work—gotta have time to do other things—I've been busy. If you had your way we'd all be eager beavers. What a fine bunch of deadheads we'd be!"

Ideal, rising to his full stature and wrinkling his brow, retorted without hesitation, "You'd do well to put first things first. Just let me ask you how you're studying for this final?"

Practical's Way

"There's no sense," replied Practical, "in studying the general significance of this course, because the professor only wants facts. The more facts you throw at him the higher the mark you get. Just mention what a wonderful nation Great Britain is and you can't possibly get less than a B. It doesn't matter if he asks the question about Great Britain, you just have to work it in somehow."

Throughout this discourse, Ideal grimaced even more perceptibly than before. "We disagree completely. Is it not more important to study for this examination by asking yourself what is important in this couse to you as an individual and a member of society, than to seek what the professor usually asks. You are here to prepare for life, not just a two-hour final. You seem particularly interested in receiving a good grade. You forfeit your integrity by bribing the professor with your insincere praise of his "favorite" country. If you will stoop to this now, what will you stoop to later?"

Competitive World

Ideal was ready to continue, for he was much more of a talker than Practical. However, Practical interrupted him saying, "Now just a minute. Who's kiddin' who about this mark stuff? We're in a competitive world that has to run by some standard and in college, marks are it. So if you want to get ahead, you have to play the angles—everybody does it, so you have to too. Were not getting anyplace this way—let's shake hands and call it off for a while."

That was the last thing I remember them doing. Each withdrew to his side of the book, sat down uneasily, eyeing each other in a questionable truce.

CAMPUS NOTES

A Skyline farewell party for the graduating seniors, Eileen Luz and Rebecca A. Fraser, was held in Hepburn rec room on Wednesday, February 6.

The entertainment for the party consisted of singing both old and new songs with words by the new Skyline members, who also provided the evening's amusement with the aid of Herbert Manell '48 singing an informal solo. The hot dog supper was greatly enjoyed by all, including Professor Voter who attended the party.

"Literature and Language Development in the United States," will be the topic under discussion at the next meeting of Humanities to be held Friday, March 8, in Munroe 102, at 8.00 p.m. Plans for a chapel program with the theme "Religious and Philosophical Development in the United States" are being made for its presentation in the near future.

Mr. Wilbur McNair, representative of the United Electrical Machine Workers of America, affiliated with the C. I. O., and Mr. Albert Cree, president of the Vermont Public Service Corporation, were guest speakers at the discussion on current labor-management problems sponsored by S. A. A. in Munroe, Tuesday night.

Freeman Tells Of G.I. Schoo

1,500,000 STUDIED IN BIARRITZ UNIV

Stephen A. Freeman

Organized as a part of the instructional program of the Information and Education Division of the United States Army, under which over a million and a half men were registered the Biarritz-American University was one of the most distinctive and successful units. Four thousand men in uniform, both officers and enlisted personnel, were enrolled on a voluntary basis in each eight weeks session. Three sessions will have been completed before the University is moved in March to a new location in Germany. Another similar university was located in Shrivenham near Oxford in England. The prime objective of these army universities was to give qualified men an opportunity to readjust themselves to the classroom and prepare themselves for further study, while waiting for the boat.

Half of Faculty Ph.Ds

Working under Brig. Gen. Samuel McCroskey, commandant, was a centralized administrative and instructional staff. A complete military staff with a thousand men in the station complement, together with 1,500 French civilian employees and 750 German prisoners of war, took care of all the necessary services. The faculty of 275 consisted of 150 civilians and 125 military personnel. The latter included both officers and enlisted men, but all had had experience in college teaching. The civilians were recruited from over 100 American colleges and universities; 43 of them were heads of departments and 48 were full professors in their home institutions. Half of the faculty held Ph.D. degrees. They were chosen primarily for their skill as classroom teachers, however, rather than for their reputation in research.

Over 250 courses were offered in 38 departments. The eight sections of the university were Agriculture, Commerce, Education, Engineering, Fine Arts, Journalism, Liberal Arts, and Science. The Liberal Arts Section, with a course enrollment of 3,700, had also the largest course offering—125 subjects in the eight departments covering the usual liberal arts college curriculum.

No Required Courses

Each student elected three courses, and his choice was entirely free; there were no required courses. Classes met five days a week, Saturdays and Sundays being free for recreation. The class load was thus 15 hours a week, similar to the

YALE PROFESSOR TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Liston Pope, Associate Professor of Social Ethics on the Gilbert L. Stark Foundation of Yale Divinity School, will be the guest speaker at Vespers, Sunday, March 3, in Mead Chapel.

Rev. Pope, besides being associated with Yale Divinity School, is also a member of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education and the American Sociological Society. He is Chairman of the Industrial Division of the Federal Council of Churches.

Rev. Pope is the author of Millhands and Preachers, several pamphlets, and articles in several journals, and is editor of Social Action Magazine.

SPORTS

BILLBOARD

Sure seems swell to have so many familiar faces back with us again. A welcome isn't necessary, after the many that have already been offered, but just the same, you know how glad we are to see you.

Let's make all the "new" men feel right at home—they're a good bunch and deserve all the hospitality that we can show them.

Now the Women's College won't have to import so much.

The draft kinda cut into the ranks of the first term freshman class. Midd lost some good men, they'll be back soon, we all hope for that.

Spring sports call has been issued. Let's all get out and do something—there's a wide field to choose from—track, baseball, tennis and golf.

You can't spend all your time on the books, or on the other side of the campus—at least you can't and stay normal, so the theory of college life insists.

The new members of the basketball team look about twice as good as anything we had around here first semester. If they were in any shape at all, they could rack up straight victories—they have the two most important factors for winning—spirit and a will to win.

Jim Beck and Barquin are both better ball players than anything we had this past term.

A shift in the national collegiate basketball picture occurred over the last few weeks. N. Y. U. is now rated a slight edge over both Bowling Green (Ky.) and the University of Iowa.

Outstanding darkhorses of the year are the Wildcats from Northwestern University who have knocked off Notre Dame, Michigan State and Illinois. Sparkplug here is Max Morris, all-American center, who can be remembered as the same person who received an end position on most all of the all-American football selections this past season.

Watch this outfit if the Big Ten gives them permission to play in the Nationals, to be held at the Garden next month.

From all indications, Midd will be well represented this spring—the callout proved both successful and also showed that there is top grade collegiate athletic material here in M'bury.

Midd's added vacation, thanks to the entering second semester vets, seemed to be just what the Doctor ordered. Plenty of sleep and rest for all—???

That bunch up in the Laurentians had the best time of anyone.

Midd's own "Dad" French proved very helpful at the Norwich game.

Gosh, "Brook," that's too bad about your average.

Lost, one freshman. He doesn't know if he's supposed to be the 6th person living in the Sig Ep dining room, or the 8th student on the top floor of the Lodge.

Doc Farrell is back to slaving away once again. He's all decked out in a white suit now. "Listen, you guys, you should have been here back in '36, we had some REAL athletes then." (Of course Doc told the '36 boys that they should have been at Midd in '27—etc.)

Red and Sam both back with us. Now we know that Midd's getting back into its pre-war style.

Don't forget March 15. We still owe Uncle Sugar some taxes for that last year's Army salary.

WOLF.

Norwich Overcomes Midd Five, 55-28 At Northfield, Vt.

Defeat still trailed the Middlebury basketball team last Saturday night at Northfield, Vt., as they lost their eleventh game of the season to an aggressive Norwich University quintet, to the tune of 55 to 28.

First Semester Squad

Though the Brownmen were soundly beaten by their hosts, the score was actually no indication of the contest. Coach Arthur M. Brown started a five made up of men who were on the squad the first semester. This included Carr and Lindner at forward, Bill Hentz at center, with Nelson and Chuck Rielle in the guard slots. Norwich walked all over the starting five, racking up a 14 to 0 lead, before "Press" Carr looped one for the locals.

Midd Threat

With 11 minutes elapsed, Brown inserted a complete new team, consisting entirely of veterans who had begun classes only the day before. This quintet tried their utmost to overcome the 19 point deficit that Sgt. J. H. Benson's cagers had built up during the first stages of the contest. Jim Beck and Barquin were the sparkplugs of the new Panther five, ably assisted by LaCroix, Miller and Chapin. For five minutes this outfit held Norwich down to six points, while they netted nine for themselves.

Superior First String

Norwich's new first team, which is also composed exclusively of veterans, proved to be far superior to the five men that played on the Middlebury home court a few weeks ago, since that squad has now been shifted to second string status. Led by Don Jones, forward, they forged ahead, scoring on a well executed fast break that caught the Midd defense napping a number of times. When the whistle blew ending the first half, Norwich was out in front 27 to 11.

Midd could do no better following the intermission. As the Maroon and Gold led the locals throughout, the final score found Norwich on top 55 to 28. Colo

Dormitory Opened In Stowe, Vermont For Skiing World

The Vermont Forest Service has recently opened a new ski dormitory located near the ski lift and the State Ski Lodge at Stowe, Vt., a project which will doubtlessly meet with great approval in the skiing world.

The Lodge was formerly a CCC camp which housed the crew that built one hundred miles of ski runs and trails, first aid telephone lines, the ski lodge and first aid caches in the Mount Mansfield Forest. The steam heated dormitory is reserved for school and college students and those who cannot afford to spend much for their skiing vacations.

Lodgers are required to furnish their own blankets and linen, and the charge per night, per person, is 75 cents. The cafeteria-style dining room offers meals as low as 25 cents for breakfast and 55 cents for dinner. The dormitory accomodates twenty-four men and eighteen women and the dining room seats thirty-two persons.

Synonomous with downhill and cross country skiing in the Northeast is the village of Stowe, whose Eastern slope, Mount Mansfield, has gained fame for dependable snow conditions and a remarkable layout of trails second to none in this section of the country.

Today, skiing in this community is a big industry which is readily seen by the "welcome" signs displayed by about forty-five hotels, lodges and inns. Skiing gained popularity in Stowe as early as 1920, and the development of the natural resources of the territory has been in the hands of two New York bankers, Roland Palmedo, and Jose A. Machado, Jr. By facilities is meant favorable topography, sufficient snowfall and accessibility. Mount Mansfield itself is Vermont's highest mountain with an altitude of 4500 feet. It is covered with varying pitches and grades which are excellent for downhill running and cross-country touring.

There are thirty trails on the mountain ranging in length from one to five miles, with runs for every type of skier, including the famous "Nose Dive" run, the Toll Road Skimeister, the Overland, the Perry Merrill and the Lord.

New Men Skiers Expected To Help Midd's Ski Team

Among several new skiers at Middlebury are: Joseph H. Bailey '48, Phillip G. Deane '49, Donald H. Henderson '49, and John A. Valentine '49.

Bailey, Deane

"Tink" Bailey, an ex-Midd man, can really hold his own on the ski slopes, as Middlebury already knows from past experience. Brother of Dick "Little Joe" Bailey, "Tink" is a star of jumping, slalom, cross-country and downhill.

Phil Deane, from Greenfield, Mass., is another four-star skier for Middlebury. At Deerfield Academy he was a member of the ski team, professing a special love of cross-country. For the past several years he has served with the 10th Mountain Division of the 87th Regiment.

Henderson, Valentine

Don Henderson was born and raised in Berlin, N. H., which is noted for its excellent jumpers and cross-country skiers. Although downhill and slalom are comparatively new to Don, he seems to be talented in all events, as seen at this year's Dartmouth Winter Carnival where he won several races. Don, like Phil, was also a member of the 10th Mountain Division for over three years.

Jack Valentine of Lowell, Mass., is another cross-country enthusiast, although he is skilled in the other three ski events also. Jack, along with "Icky" Fife, is a veteran of the 15th Air Force, which saw action in the Italian campaign. The two skiers also attended Vermont Academy together in pre-war days.

The ski team will have its tryouts this weekend.

Middlebury Quintet Loses to Williams

Middlebury's basketball quintet was trounced by a powerful Williams five, 66 to 21, in the last game of the first term, a contest held at Williamstown, Mass., on February 7.

The Blue and White were outclassed in every department, as the Purple took an early lead and maintained it throughout the game, leaving the court at the end of the first 20 minutes of play with a commanding 27 to 13 advantage.

It was the second half when the Eph basketeers turned on the power and thoroughly drubbed the locals, as they outscored the Brownmen 39 to 8.

Middlebury's offense never got going, whereas the Williams team continued to rack up points, both from the field and the gift line.

Bob Johnston and Jim Stites led the host team, while Walt Nelson, turning in his best performance of the year, led the Panther scoring.

Midd Basketball Match Opens Today; 8 Teams Strive for Championship

Athletic Director A. M. Brown and Coach J. J. Kelly have announced that an intramural basketball tournament will be held, commencing this evening. This tournament will be run on an elimination basis.

First Games

The first game will be played on Thursday, February 28, at 6:45 p.m., when the championship Second Floor team will tangle with the Faculty. One hour later, a quintet representing Fraternity Row will play the First Floor of Gifford.

On Friday, March 1, at 6:45 p.m., the Fourth and Fifth floors are scheduled to pair off, with the Third Floor cagers running up against the Off Campus five, one hour later.

Monday, March 4, at 6:45 p.m., the winner of the Second vs. Faculty game will play the winner of the Fraternity Row vs. First Floor contest, followed by a game between the victors of the Fourth vs. Fifth and Third vs. Off-Campus.

Midd Men Rate 4th in Combined At Hanover Meet

At the Dartmouth Carnival on February 9-10 Middlebury's men's ski team placed fourth in the combined scoring, while McGill, Dartmouth, University of New Hampshire, and West Point finished first, second, third, and fifth respectively.

Ray Henderson was number one man in the combined, due to his placing second in the jumping, third in the slalom, ninth in the downhill, and fifteenth in the cross-country. "Icky" Fife came in fifth in the slalom and twelfth in the cross-country.

Middlebury's next ski competition will be at the Harvard Carnival, March 9-10, at Big Bromley, Manchester. The team will present Cremer, Fife, Valentine, Deane, Wells, and Petrie. There will be events in slalom, downhill, and cross-country, but no jumping. On the same week-end the women's team will be holding its own at Pico, skiing in the U. S. Eastern Downhill and Slalom Meet.

to Celebrate Them." Everyday she and Mary Jane Selleck serenade America's birthdayites. Sel only does this as an avocation as she is actually working in her chemistry laboratory, solving the question, "Will perfume ever replace the Atomic Bomb?" Doesn't she know?

Nursery Addicts

As we had to wait a couple of hours at the next stop, we visited the nursery school run by Marcey Lynn in collaboraaion with Muckey Hood. Muckie had the children run through their early morning routine, established by her old crony, Val Cutting. This consists of the children kneeling on the floor and bowing low to a certain portrait with the chant "Praise Eddie." Marcey's own children are the models of Psychology 36.2 and attend the Nursery School regularly. This can't be hereditary. Musical Marcey is teaching the children to sing "ski songs from Brazil," an old Midd tradition.

Industry, Radio

On our way back to the airport, we passed the Rice Inner-tube Corporation. Here we realized Helen Riggs and her husband were making a new synthetic rubber inner tube, guaranteed not to blow out at the crucial moment.

After reboarding the plane, we turned on our portable radio and heard, first, "The Singing Lady," featuring Mary Nasmith with stories from ye olde 18th century and songs for everyone. She was followed by the Lux show, tonight featuring Gladys Swift in her newest success, "The Little Wolves."

Chops and Sonatas

Picking up tidbits of gossip, we learned that Helen Parker was far surpassing our greatest expectations by crossing lambs with cows — result — bigger and better lamb chops. She was at present supplying Middlebury College every Sunday, to replace the traditional chicken. Mamie Chianciola is now captivating American audiences by singing Spanish songs in Italian and English at the Wedgewood Room and other prominent night spots.

Male Successes

Russ Dale is now in charge of the country's largest bank. The Short Change Exchange, located next door to Lou Ensinger's travel bureau—the motto on the window being, "We take you anywhere, but you just try to get back."

Hazel Godfrey and Betty Moulton are now the nation's top-flight creators of clothes. 91 Men Try Out For New Teams

Baseball, Track, Tennis, Golf, Open to Competition

Ninety-one men, tryouts for the spring sports teams of baseball, track, tennis and golf, met at the McCullough gymnasium Wednesday night with the coaches and managers of the various teams.

Former Players Return

"Red" Kelly of the baseball department was pleased to find 30 prospective candidates for the club. Among those to appear were George Wiemann, letter man and left-handed pitcher of former Midd teams, Tom Cruess, a reliable catcher and heavy hitter. Paul Lichr and Al Robertson, pitcher and second baseman respectively, were also among former Midd players present.

The team has twelve scheduled games, commencing in May, six at home and six away, and Coach Kelly and Manager Weeks are highly pleased over the prospects of a good season as indicated by this turnout.

Large Track Turnout

The cinder and pit association also was well filled with applicants, 32 in all, and according to Coach Brown, track coach, a well-balanced team should be forthcoming in the Spring. One of the main attractions here is the intramural meet scheduled for the first week in May. At this time the team should be in fairly good condition and have a chance to show their prowess to coach and college alike. Incidentally, this meet is open to all men students as well as to the members f the track squad.

Tennis and Golf

Coach Cornwall's tennis team saw 15 tryouts, best known of these being Felix Robatyn, one of the outstanding tennis players of his class on the east coast. Other promising "racqueteers" on hand were S. T. Short and L. A. Rice, former letter men and reliable players. All in all the tennis team should be well coordinated and have every chance of a good season.

With Al Wolfley as manager and former letter man of the golf squad, and Chuck Scott and Dan Petrizzi to form a nucleus, a fairly good team should also be in the making out of the 14 applicants that appeared at the gym.

Conditioning Stressed

The coaches of the various squads stressed the fact that good teams are formed only by men in top notch physical condition and that an exhaustive conditioning program by all departments would be inaugurated immediately.

Summing up: the spring sports teams are well filled with promising men and, with intensive training, have every reason to complete an average to good sports season.

comprehension of the student's principal field of study.

Previous to the war, each department of study had the privilege of designating the material content of the general examination, its nature and the method of preparing students in the latter part of their senior year. Professors assisted students by such means as individual conferences, group seminars, series of lectures, reading lists and syllabi, sample examinations and senior coordinating courses. Also, at the discretion of each department, major students whose work was of sufficient merit could be excused from the department's final examination.

All such practices are now subject to revision by the faculty committee. The final approved arrangements will be published immediately upon acceptance by the college faculty.

Debating Club To Face UVM Friday at 7.30

Armstrong, Ziff, Forst Seek Honor Prizes For Midd

Rivaling U. V. M. for the Edwin Lawrence awards, Middlebury's Debating Club will hold its most important debate of the year when it faces that team tomorrow night at 7.30 in Munroe Hall.

Atom Ownership

The subject under discussion is whether or not all U. S. patents on atomic energy should remain the property of the Federal Government. Middlebury, represented by Larzer Ziff '48, Margaret D. Armstrong '49, and Iris J. Forst '48, is arguing positively, while U. V. M. is taking the negative side.

Two sets of judges will take charge of selecting the honorary prize winners. The Edwin Winship Lawrence has left a provision for the annual Midd-U. V. M. debate, so that the three best debaters on each team are awarded $25, $15 and $10 respectively. These individual prize winners are selected and awarded by one set of judges; the team which is superior is chosen by the other judges.

Midd Debaters

Middlebury for ten consecutive years has had the unique distinction of being among the best debating colleges in the country. As representative of the Northeastern area, Middlebury has been mentioned in Edith Phelps' "University Debaters' Annual."

Due to wartime onditions, Middlebury has not been able to carry on as extensively as in former years. However, there have been five men's debates and eleven women's this past school year.

The team members are the following: Larzer Ziff '48, Robert S. Goell '48, Stanwood L. Perkins '49, George N. Sholes '49, Gloria A. Antolini '46, Nancy A. Rathgeb '46, Margaret D. Armstrong '47, Muriel E. Mack '47, Joan C. Seideman '47, Jean Birkenstein '48, Shirley E. Davidson '48, Iris J. Forst '48, and Mary H. Ashworth '49.

Interfraternity Charter Obtains Final Approval; New Rules, Aims, Established

Fraternity reorganization at Middlebury College was given full approval by the Administration and Student Life Committee here last week with the adoption of a new Interfraternity Council Constitution, indicating that fraternities in the future were to fit into an educational order rather than stand as social appendages on the campus. The new deal for fraternities at Middlebury calls for total abolishment of the traditional hazing practice, democratic rushing rules, and new academic emphasis in the houses.

Administration Advice

In reply to a request from the Middlebury Interfraternity Council for advice on fraternity reorganization, the Administration Committee stated that the College would favor extending to the Council and the fraternities "every responsibility which the fraternities will accept, as long as the responsibilities are carried out within the bounds of accepted social practice, and within the accepted academic traditions of the college."

New Program

The newly adopted constitution of the Interfraternity Council, as endorsed by the Administration Committee, calls for complete abolishment of hazing; auditing of fraternity accounts; cooperative purchase of supplies; appointment of a representative in each fraternity for frequent consultation with the Dean; maintaining a regular program of cultural and academic interests as part of chapter activities; promoting democratic treatment of students regardless of race or religion; extension of house privileges to non-members who are unable to join because of financial handicaps or other causes; promotion of high scholastic achievement; and regulation of membership quotas so that no student need be disqualified from joining a fraternity because of limitations to total membership.

Fraternity Functions

"Fraternities can fulfill an important part in the educational program," the Administration Committee report states, "if they recognize as their responsibility the encouragement of high levels of college work and if they include in their purpose the sponsorship of group social living according to college and community standards. Such idealism is incorporated in the precepts of most fraternities and the Council members must be as fully aware of the occasional failure of fraternities in the past to live up to these ideals, as are the faculty and administration. The administration would like to assist the fraternities in any way possible to see that fraternity ideals are put into practice.

usual college porgram and contrasting with the intensive courses conducted by the army and navy in this country. Certificates were given at the end of the session; it is expected that they will be honored for the transfer of credit by civilian institutions.

Varied Activities

It would have been difficult to find a more attractive place for the location of the university. Biarritz, south of Bordeaux on the Atlantic Coast, only 16 miles from the Spanish border, ranked in peacetime with the Riviera as the playground of European aristocracy. A modern town with a permanent population of 20,000 its chief assets are its location on a beautiful sandy beach, and its mild climate. Classrooms, dormitories, and other facilities of the university were located in 230 separate buildings leased to the Army in the center of Biarritz. They ranged from the most luxurious hotels and villas to more utilitarian buildings, garages and sheds. During August, September, and a part of October, the students spent a considerable portion of their time sunbathing on the sand, fraternizing on occasion with the French demoiselles, or when necessary ignoring them in order to complete an assignment in math or business law. When it grew too cold to swim, excursions by truck into the picturesque and mysterious Basque country, or golf, tennis, dances, and moving pictures were popular. Organized extra-curricular activities ranged from dramatics, with different casts performing "You Can't Take It With You" and "Richard III," to expositions of the fine arts, showing outstanding student talent in painting, sculpture and photography.

Men' College Holds Middnite

Robert C. Terrill '46, president of the men's undergrad, was master of ceremonies at Midd night for men, held in McCullough Gym, Friday, February 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Midd Fraternities

Dean W. Storrs Lee, spoke on the place of fraternities at Middlebury, one of his main points being that if there were no fraternities, other organizations, which would be less desirable, would arise. Another point was that almost any man who could show any ability would be able to belong to a fraternity.

Arthur M. Brown, athletic director, told about the increase in sports ability at Midd with interest in several new sports, such as golf. Spring golf will be under the direction of Alan Wolfley '47. Sam Guarnaccia, former coach of football, asked for a new Midd spirit and Joseph Jones, coach of skiing, emphasized the fact that men should turn out for skiing to see what they could do.

Starr Hall Reminiscing

Professor Frank W. Cady reminisced about Starr in the "good old days" when he was a student at Midd.

Professor Stephen A. Freeman, vice-president, told of his experiences in teaching soldiers overseas and of the interest men had in cultural courses.

Roy H. Kinsey then gave a short talk on Blue Key, the organization sponsoring Midd night. He mentioned that it was an active society which will promote Midd spirit and told about its founding and organization. He also said that there would be no freshman hazing this year.

Old members of Blue Key include: Peter E. Funck '46, James W. Ham '47, Ray Sacher '47, and Thomas H. Cremer '48. New members returning from the services are: Bruce I. Carson '46, Thomas S. Cruess '47, Roy H. Kinsey '47, and Cecil H. Steen '48.

Dr. Stratton Plans Alumni Receptions

President Samuel S. Stratton is planning a round of Alumni dinners at which he will be guest speaker, beginning with a reception in Rochester, N. Y., on March 5 and ending with a New York City banquet on April 26.

The schedule of receptions with the hotels in which they will be held is as follows: Rochester, N. Y., March 5 (undecided); Buffalo, N. Y., March 7, Hotel Westbrook, Blue Room; Chicago, Ill., March 9, Stevens Building Restaurant; Cleveland, Ohio, March 11, University Club; Albany, N. Y., March 14 (undecided); Hartford, Conn., April 6, City Club; Burlington, April 13 (undecided); Washington, D. C., April 20 (undecided); New York, N. Y., April 26, Hotel Pennsylvania.

Dr. Stratton will combine his talks at the various banquets with movies of Middlebury life and activities. The banquet committees extend invitations not only to all college alumni and alumnae, but also to parents of present and prospective Middlebury students.

taken Claire Luce's place as America's best dressed politician.

Journalistic Slant

Picking up a copy of the latest New York Times, we found it to be edited by none other than Helen Floyd—whose motto for the paper is "All the news, whether it's fit to print or not!" The feature article was "Hock shops and their educational value," by Barbara Meyers, dedicated to Mr. Holden. In the Drene ad of the week, Florence Goeltz was featured as "You can be blond, too."

At our next stop, Faith Weber met us. Faith is secretary to Chuck Conley's new political party—Conley's Constitutional Conscripts. The party stands for a 10-day week and a 36 hour day. This is so there can be more time to spend, making a need for more Congressmen to spend it. The reason we need more Congressmen, Faith explained, is to fill up the new houses just erected in Washington, under the auspicious title "Meikel's Mighty Mansions." Bill has invented a prefabricated house which can be held together by zippers.

Final Stop

This being our last stop, before arrival at our destination, we decided to eat. We enticed "Bull's Beef and Boullion Bar" where Allie Lou is the winner of the Nobel Prize because while the rest of the world can have test tube babies, Allie Lou has paired off two of the glass receptacles and had baby test tubes.

Arriving in the land of ice and snow, we were greeted by Becky Fraser, on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce. Becky has made a lot of progress in the last years—she has created a six passenger ski so that we novices can get the thrill of skiing with the talent of the experts steering. Becky's protege is Cindy Darby. Cindy was getting in practice for the race the following week—she had challenged the Wuertells to a race—putting on their skiis.

With a sigh, the aged Philosopher turned to us and said, "That's about all I can show you—but this I can tell you—the class will all be very lucky and each one's fondest dreams will come true. Bless you and good night."

NOTICES

Attention is invited to the college attendance regulation which states that sophomores and freshmen are required to attend all recitation and laboratory periods for which they register, with the exception of three absences per semester for which no excuse need be presented.

No exception is made to this regulation for veterans, except those on the six semester plan. At the end of the third semester, veterans enrolled under the six semester plan are considered upperclassmen and have the same voluntry attendance privileges extended to juniors and seniors.

It has been traditional for students to observe seniority in Chapel. For the benefit of the new men and as a reminder to all upperclassmen the system which follows will become effective March 1.

At the proper time, the seniors rise to leave—all others remain seated until the last row of the seventh term men has filed out. Then in like order the remaining classes will follow. This means that all men seated on the sides will remain seated until the center body of men has left Chapel.

The exit from Chapel is planned to facilitate an efficient system of departure; full cooperation is expected in this matter.

THE BLUE KEY.

To the undergraduates:

The abuse of the privilege of issuing Chapel notices has necessitated the adoption of the policy set forth below. This policy will be administered strictly, with a view to the elimination of every message which can reach its audience by other means. Chapel notices are messages of an emergency nature, calling for immediate action or understanding by a significant fraction of the student body.

The daily chapel service is devotional in character, and the obtrusion of so many notices is detrimental to its purpose.

A bulletin board with a locking glass panel has been established in the lobby of Munroe Hall. It is divided into a daily and a long-term section and will be revised daily at 10:30. Authors of notices are required to include their signatures and issuing authority. Students are urged to form the habit of consulting it daily, and will be responsible for its contents.

It is not asking too much of organizations to have the foresight to arrange for subsequent meetings prior to adjournment, or to take other means of notifying participants. The CAMPUS publishes a weekly calendar for such long-range service. Daily Chapel is not an advertising medium for campus organizations.

dous Christmas party for the children. They gave toys and candy, many giving their own Christmas packages to the children. "That was a real Christmas," Mr. Guaranaccia said, "all giving and no thought of receiving!"

Middlebury Graduate

During his undergraduate days at Middlebury, Mr. Guarnaccia belonged to Waubanakee, an honorary society for junior men which has been inactive during the war years, the Mountain Club and Kappa Delta Rho fraternity, and he also excelled in athletics. After his graduation in 1930, he taught at the New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson and the Cheshire School in Roxbury, Conn. Returning in 1936 to Middlebury, he received his M.A. and in 1940 became an instructor in Spanish and Italian.

End" by William Rose Benet which will be directed by Nancy E. Breed '48, will complete the evening's performances. Tryouts for both plays were held last night and tonight at the Playhouse.

High School Production

Another student director, Evelyn G. Barre '46, is in charge of the Middlebury High School's production of "The Pot Boiler," which will be offered to represent that school in the annual statewide dramatic tournament held in the spring.

"Everyman," credited as the finest sixteenth century morality play, will be given this year in the college Playhouse instead of in Mead Chapel as was done last spring. The play is a colorful pageant, quite topical for the Easter season and will be presented with a large proportion of last season's cast. Professor John A. Holden will resume his role of Everyman while Professors Werner Neuse and Erie Volkert will again be seen in their respective roles of Evil and Death. Numerous openings for tryouts have been announced, however, to fill vacancies left by departed V-12 members of the cast.

The author of the play is unknown, the first manuscript being published by Roger Pynson in 1500. However, dramatic scholars believe the play was written earlier by a Dutch master, Peter of Drest, and the English version based upon it.

Championship Match

When the smoke clears, there will be two teams remaining, and they will play off for the championship on Saturday, March 9, at 6:30 p.m., in the High School Gym, as a preliminary to the Midd-St. Lawrence Varsity game.

Men representing the Second deck in Gifford are once more favored to retain their unblemished record, but such teams as Fraternity Row and Off-Campus have been bolstered by an addition of many new men, who should be a great help to their respective squads.

Pen-Hel Announces Rules For New Sorority Season

Great Emphasis Placed On Honor System In Rushing

Jane H. Strayer '47, President of the Pan-Hellenic Council, spoke to all freshmen and transfers last Monday night in Forest Rec at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of her talk was to pass on to all new women the rules of the coming rushing season. Emphasis was placed on the honor system which is being inaugurated this year. Each member of the program, whether sorority woman or rushee, is on her honor to abide by the rules as set down by Pan-Hel.

No Chaperonage

Each sorority woman is on her honor not to mention anything about sororities except at official rushing functions. Each rushee is on her honor not to ask sorority women about sororities with the exception of Jane Strayer. No chaperone is needed in order for a rushee and a sorority woman to converse. The success of the honor system is imperative, and each woman on campus is urged to adhere to it strictly.

No Silence Period

It has been decided that there shall be no silence period between the time when bids are issued and the answers are reported.

Freshmen and transfers were told to sign in Miss Strayer's room, 329 Forest West, by Wednesday, February 27. However, those signing up after that date are not necessarily exempt from being rushed. It was also mentioned that guests at parties should make a point of arriving and leaving promptly.

WAA To Attend UVM's Playday

A group of Middlebury women have been invited to U.V.M. on Saturday, March 2, for a Playday, an afternoon of games followed by supper. Nine members of the Modern Dance Group are also attending Playday.

W.A.A. jackets were awarded in Chapel on February 7 to Rebecca Fraser '46, Marcey Lynn '46, and Mary Jane Selleck '46, all graduates of February 17, and also to Ann Argyle '47. To obtain a jacket, a student must have accumulated 1,000 points and must have been either a member of an all-Midd team, or the winner of an individual sport.

College Photo Collection Being Displayed in Libe

Photographs of chapels, libraries, halls, and campuses of New England schools and colleges are on display in the Browsing Room of Starr library until March 8.

The collection was lent to the college by the Maynard Workshop in Huban, Mass. Collecting photos is a hobby of Mr. Maynard. He will soon send the library pictures of historic New England houses. Mr. Maynard has worked on his hobby for several years. His collection enables students of different colleges to compare campuses and perhaps gain some new architectural ideas.

Negro History Week and American Brotherhood Week were commemorated by the library in an exhibit of books by and about Negroes and photos of outstanding Negro men and women. The display was unusually successful because it collaborated with the Association for Study of Negro and Life and History in furthering knowledge of Negro contributions to civilization in the U. S. and in Africa. Besides their music and poetry, attention was called to the Negroes' social progress and their work in fields such as law, science and education.

2nd Gifford Takes Intramural Lead By Wide Margin

Intramurals, at the completion of the first term, found the second floor of Gifford Hall ahead by a wide margin, due to their clean sweep of both the volleyball and basketball championships.

Additional Team

With the start of the second semester, one more team has been added to the previous list of competitors. This new group will comprise the men who live in any of the three fraternity houses—Sig Ep, D. U., and Chi Psi. Off-Campus will be made up of those men who live in the Federation House, plus the town students and the married men. A team representing the Faculty will be at hand, as well as a team for each of the five floors in Gifford.

Three Activities

Competition in the Intramural League will be limited to three activities: an elimination basketball tourney, and individual handball and badminton tournaments. The first game of the basketball tournament will be held this evening. As soon as weather is permissible, board track relays and softball contests will be held.

Final results of the first round-robin basketball competition, as well as total points to date, are as follows:

	Won	Lost	Basket-ball Pts.	Volley-ball Pts.	Total
2nd Floor	6	0	48	54	102
4th Floor	5	1	40	18	58
